Subject: no licences

Hi there,

Its not funny that they are able to just change things like licences, to give Jo Blow the right to go out and mess up our industry that we have worked so hard and long to keep pride in our finishing trades. We have driven painting to the top of our industry, and had to pay our way , as in workers comp, superannuation, licences, and insurances, and also put through apprentices to make the trade up there with the best of trades. It would be a damb shame to lower the standards now, and let the cowboys in, as we are still adjusting to the foreigners that have moved in and taking over our industry in our cities. What , just another kick in the guts for the workers that have done the right thing.
