Subject: review of proposed changes

I don't agree with the proposed changes to removing licenses from the 13 categories listed in your document.

I cant believe that you want to make it easier for people who are not trained or licensed to perform these services.

Its hard enough now to get a good trades person who does a good job and not rip you off and if you are affected by either of these conditions its very hard to get redress.

I can understand the government is trying to reduce it costs by not licensing these trades but you should be enforcing breaches not making it easier for people to impersonate trades people.

Many elderly people get ripped off under the current rules whats it going to be like if you make it easier for workmen to say they are qualified when there not.

By the way there is no mention that you want people giving input that they need to read a 50 page document. I am sure that it would turn many off.
